The 2009 Workshop on Normalization by Evaluation took place at UCLA on August 15, 2009, as a LICS Workshop.

Nine articles were submitted and accepted, and each received between two and six sets of comments from the program committee members.

The present informal proceedings are meant to serve of a record of the meeting, and to contribute to the goals of the workshop, which are to establish a continuity with NBE research so far (earlier NBE workshops took place in Chalmers, Sweden in 1998, and in Tallinn, Estonia in 2004), to offer a forum for the new actors, and to identify and build a community.

I would like to thank the authors for submitting an article to NBE'09; the PC members for their time and brain cycles; Peter Dybjer for accepting to give the keynote speech; each of Thorsten Altenkirch and Andrzej Filinski for accepting to give an impromptu invited talk; the LICS workshop chairs Adriana Compagnoni and Maribel Fernandez for selecting NBE'09; and last but not least the conference chair Jens Palsberg for his outstanding readiness and efficient help.
